

SHUBY

Studio + Street Artist

shubyart@gmail.com

Shuby began her practice as a street artist in 2007 pasting up her images in cities all over the world from New York, Miami, Barcelona, Berlin, Sidney, Lisbon, London and beyond. From there she began to participate in group shows including a residency at Venice Biennale. Her street art began with work inspired by singer and dancer Josephine Baker and the Busby Berkeley film 'The Gang's all Here'. She since has embarked on a journey evolving a range of found images inspired by the iconography of 50's and 60's film posters, retro advertising and pop images that are deconstructed, reworked and punctuated with her iconic banana and bunny motifs Shuby has made murals and large scale commissions since 2013 for Australian restaurant group Daisy Green Collection in central London including decorating a shipping container on the Southbank and designing deckchairs and cups with her 'Your Banana Needs You' banner. She has painted a racing Jaguar Stock Car that was used at the Arlington Speedway. She has also done clothing collaborations with a small fashion label Red Mutha in Brighton and creating window paste up designs for Shelter Shop, Brighton.
